Army Overcoats.

In the event of John Bull's coming over here attempting to kick the dynamite out of us for harboring O'Donovan Rossa, we shall require every man of this skeddadle crew, who shall enlist to carry a musket, to carry in his knapsack one of these army overcoats. Other nations may think nothing of sleeping on the ground in cold weather, but we shall not do it. Our boys must have some fine goods, and we will give you a fair profit if you will show us how to make lower prices than we do.

Androscoggin

The opening up of the numerous attractions of Bryant's Pond on the Grand Trunk is being agitated by the railroad officials.

The Mount Crafts Shoe Company's factory, Auburn, which shut down a few days ago, has again started up with a full force of help. We believe that as the prospects of Blaine's election continue to increase in the progress of the campaign that business will be found to improve.

Vandalism in the shape of the robbing and despoiling of flower beds, is lately of frequent occurrence. Very bright and beautiful were the flowers in front of Trinity church in Lewiston. They had received excellent care. The ladies had exercised correct judgment in selection of flowers. The flowers were all gone Sunday. In the night, some one had dug up every pot of verbena, geranium, rose and pink, and hardly even a sweet pea was left. It was evidently done by females, for the soft earth were left the impress of feminine boots.

Cumberland

The new town building of Brunswick was opened to the public last week, and formally turned over by the building committee to the selectmen. The total cost is about $38,000. As the building has been erected by the town without individual gift or bequest, and is in part a soldiers' memorial, naming the hall in honor of any individual was not approved, and it will be known as the Town Hall, until a city charter is adopted.

The Supreme Court came in Tuesday morning, Judge Virgin presiding, to hear arguments in certiorari in the case of Marshall Andrews vs. the Board of Mayor and Aldermen. Mr. Putnam and Charles E. Libby, both being absent, upon request of Judge Goddard, the case was continued until Saturday, June 24th, when it will be proceeded with.

About 10.30 Tuesday morning, Rosa E. Lowell, unmarried, about twenty-seven years of age, employed as switchman in the Grand Trunk yard, was jammed between the cars and fatally injured. He was taken to his home, in Portland and received every medical attention, but his injuries were beyond human aid and he died about one o'clock. His shoulder and head were badly crushed and it is probable that he sustained internal injuries. He was son of David R. Lowell, also in the employ of the Grand Trunk.

A meeting of Plymouth parish was held on Monday night to see if they would accept the offer of $20,000 from Cases street church for the Plymouth street church property. The moderator stated that he had a proposition from several members of the parish, who rented pews, asking if the parish would receive a bid from them. It was unanimously voted that the property be sold to those members if they desire, for the same sum offered by the Cases street society. It was voted that until next Monday be given them to make their decision. If they do not close the bargain as soon as that the committee are authorized to sell the property to the Cases street society for the price stated above.

The funeral of the late Emory D. Winchenbaugh took place from the home of Mrs. Winchenbaugh's father, in Waldoboro, on Sunday, and was the largest attended of any funeral ever held in that town. The floral offerings from those who had known him in Portland and in his native town were numerous and beautiful. The Odd Fellows, Masons and other societies to which the deceased belong were represented at the funeral. Rev. W. B. Brown preached the sermon and forty-five carriages followed the remains to the tomb.

During a very heavy thunder shower which was experienced in Norridgewock on Saturday, the barn of Mr. O. W. Linkham was struck by lightning, and was burned to the ground, together with ten or twelve tons of hay, and a considerable portion of the farming tools.

Two of the members of the California delegation are natives of Somerset. Frank L. French, son of the late Joseph French, of Athens, who is now a prominent lawyer of San Francisco, and Dr. Thomas Flint, son of Hon. W. R. Flint, of North Anson, who has been a State Senator of California, and held other important positions there. Mr. French is accompanied by his wife, and Dr. Flint by his daughter, and they will visit their friends in this county, before returning to the Pacific coast.

York.

Mr. Alonzo Gilman, a member of the society of Shakers, in Alfred, committed suicide by drowning in Shaker Pond, Sunday forenoon last. He had shown signs of insanity for several days, and Sunday morning, about eight o'clock, was seen going towards the pond near the Shaker village, and about noon his body was found in a few feet of water near the shore, his hat and coat being left on the bank. Mr. Gilman was nearly seventy years of age, and joined the Shakers at about the age of twenty-five, before which he had followed the sea, somewhat as a sailor, and was once struck by lightning on shipboard.

More and Cheaper Paper

A NEW MATERIAL UTILIZED SUCCESSFUL EXPERIMENTS WITH BAGASSE AND OTHER FIBRES.

A recent edition of the New Orleans Picayune was printed on paper made of bagasse, the refuse of sugar cane after the juice has been pressed out. This event has created a stir in several quarters. The sugar planters of Louisiana who have hitherto found this fibrous worthless stuff to get rid of it now see a possibility of making money out of it, and a few enthusiasts reckon that it will be nearly as profitable as the sugar crop. South in capital seem a new opening for investment in the manufacture of bagasse. Paper buyers in the South look forward to emancipation from Northern mills and heavy transportation charges on their purchases. Northern manufacturers who have long and eagerly been studying how to make paper more cheaply will give this development close attention, and think of several ways in which it may affect their trade. And finally consumers of paper generally will be alert to the suggestion here offered that the battle is may become cheaper and more abundant. Within a generation the cost of producing paper has been greatly lessened and the quantity produced enormously increased by the discovery of economic ways to use new fibres so much cheaper than rags.

For silver bills and all other European imported paper from the Chinese as a substitute for paper or for purchase it, it was not deemed practicable to use anything in making it but cotton and linen rags. It was known more than a hundred years ago that wood, straw or other such growths contained suitable fibre for paper, but the difficulty has been to find a cheap way of separating the lignin, cellulose and other impurities from it, so that the fibre would felt together fully into a white pulpable web. Countless experiments have been made in this direction and are being made recently to dig up wood fibrous bearing high enough for years ago by the invention of wood pulp. Spruce and other revolving stone spruce and poplar are reduced to a form in which, with only a slight addition of rags, excellent newspaper is made, from 50 to 80 per cent of ordinary newspaper is ground wood. By a chemical process consisting of baths in superheated steam and alkali under high pressure, to boilers the cellulose fibre in wood enough freed of all impurities, and made available for the finest paper and writing paper. In the paper industry of the world already almost a parish wood only is used, rags and the use of the former is rapidly developing.

QUALITY OF EXPERIMENTS

Strange was for a time, hardly to be expected, paper and now inventive genius is hard at work trying to find a cheap way of working it up into high grade papers. The Germans have lately discovered the secret of Lowell, which they closely guard. It is less than a score of years since rate hulls were adapted to material for making paper and now nearly all of the so-called manila paper is manufactured from this fibre, thereby greatly enlarging the volume of available material. It is claimed that a enterprising Massachusetts Yankee has discovered an inexpensive way of converting jute into a fine writing paper but he is careful not to impart much information regarding it. Palmetto fibre is now the subject of experiment for the year in Florida, with the hope of cheaply utilizing it in this industry. As yet not more than one mill is using that fibre. Several cotton bolls are in Virginia and South Carolina. However are having fully shown in making roofing paper out of it. Straw and other substitutes have also been tried, but without satisfactory results so far as is yet known.

It appears from statement in the New Orleans journals that the practicability of making good paper cheaply out of bagasse has recently been established. Five thousand pounds were produced from this material in a few days ago and sent to New Orleans, for publication. The Picayune was printed on it, and it could hardly be distinguished by an unpracticed eye from that which the Picayune uses. It is perhaps more crisp, glossy and darker. The manufacturer who made it certifies to the Louisiana Fibre Working Company that "bagasse paper can be produced at less cost than chemical wood paper and on a properly constructed mill it will make it better sheet for the money than any paper mill in the United States can make from other material. Not being as cheap as ground wood, bagasse pulp is not likely in the immediate future, to be used much in making newspaper. But it may prove a formidable competitor of chemical wood fibre and rag stock in the manufacture of book and writing papers. The champions of bagasse claim that it can also be wrought into heavy wrapping, cotton sampling and drawing papers, as well as those just named, and into tubs, buckets, barrels, dishes and clapboards.

WONDERFUL GROWTH OF THE INDUSTRY

There has been a wonderful growth in paper making in the United States within a few years, which has resulted in making the product much cheaper than it was before. This is partly due to improvements in machinery which run the fabric out four times as rapidly as fifteen or twenty years ago. And it is partly due to the increase in the volume, and the cheapening of the cost of material. Wood pulp has forced the price of rags down astonishingly. "Chemical fibre" keeps the choice rags, which compete with it in the book and writing paper, down close to 4 cents a pound, and "ground wood" depresses the grade which enters into newspaper to near 2 cents. In spite of this, the supply of rags increases instead of diminishing, as was prophesied would be the case. Europe, Asia Minor and Egypt now have a larger excess than ever to send us. For the four years ending June 30, 1879, the imports of rags amounted to $10,300,000; for the next four, $15,000,000. The collection and supply of domestic rags also increases steadily. Bagasse may exert still further influence in this direction. Soda ash, an important element in making paper, is now cheaper than ever before, and if the tariff is taken off, the price will be further reduced.

One marked effect of the recent growth in America's manufacture of paper is that we have practically ceased to be a buyer in this commodity abroad, and instead sell a large quantity to other countries. The value of paper imported into the United States in 1873, was $728,330; in 1877, $6,357; in 1879, we exported paper valued at $1,777; in 1883, $1,586,900. This change is due to a measure to our ability to make better paper. The chemical and most famous stationery in Europe can be matched, if not surpassed, by American makers.

Never in the history of the country was paper as cheap as it is now, and the prospect is that prices will go lower rather than higher. Quotations were nearly as low in 1878 and 1879; but the trade was abnormally dull then, other business was also depressed, and the prices of the country were unsettled. Although if not as "boom" times then be reasonably expected, (Now, however, general trade, if not as active or prosperous as it would be but for the recent tariff agitation is nevertheless on a sound basis. Credit is good, and no serious currency questions disturb business. The paper trade is said by good judges to be more likely and healthy today than some other branches of domestic commerce. The cost of production is lower now than five years ago. No natural causes, therefore, are likely to raise prices.

A TRIBUTE IN TRADE PRODUCTION

A dealer was recently asked if he thought such a "boom" in paper as that of 1880 was now possible. He answered, "No! In Heaven sake, us from another! It was short, spasmodic, unnatural ruin-ous. Paper makers were scared to death they would get left! bought rags and other stock at inflated prices, and then fell red loss from the old prices. It was a bitter experience."

Another dealer was asked about the manufacturers combining to put prices up. He said decidedly "Such talk will never amount to anything. The agreement will never be kept. Some of them would be sure to undersell their rivals, and break the arrangement all down. There are too many paper-makers for a combination. Every manufacturer is building and anxious that his neighbor shall reduce his production, but he runs his own mill for all it is worth."

A third man, big and prominently connected with the industry, said: "Unlike some other mills those that make paper must be run to their utmost capacity to yield any profit. Mr. Smith, say, has a mill of five tons capacity, daily. The country is with newspaper publishers call for four a day, at $100 or more a ton. With the usual outlay for labor and with the same wear and tear he can make another ton of paper. That excess costs him less than the other product, and that is where he gets his profit. He can sell his surplus at $80 or less a ton and yet be better off than if he had not made it. Hence the shrewdest paper-makers produce every pound their mills will yield. There is no over production. Dealers are not carrying large stocks. Consumers buy only for immediate use. The cheaper paper is the more will be sold. This is a universal law of trade, and the history of the paper trade abundantly proves it. See how the reduction of postage led to a more extensive use of the mails. No, the tendency is toward more and cheaper paper."

FORTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.—First Session

Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 12, Mr Ingalls presided over the Senate to-day

On motion of Mr Allison the Senate took a formal vote on the Consular and Diplomatic appropriation bill and the bill passed. 38 yeas, 16 nays, Messrs Vance and Van Wyck The bill as passed is almost precisely as reported from the Senate committee on appropriations making an addition of $800,000 to the bill as reported from the House.

The Mexican pension bill was taken up Mr. Van Wyck moved an amendment to Mr. McCulloch's bill to provide pensions for invalid soldiers who had been discharged from the army or navy after three months' service in the war, and for widows and parents of deceased pensioners

After considerable discussion the Senate without taking any action went into executive session and adjourned

House.

The House met at 10 o clock in continuation of Wednesday s session and went into Committee of the whole on the River and Harbor bill Mr Graves, of Missouri offered an amendment providing that nothing contained in this act shall be construed as a limitation on the bill introduced by that gentleman to prohibit the dumping of refuse material in New York harbor, adopted

At 11 o'clock the committee arose and the legislative day of Thursday opened

The Speaker laid before the House a communication from the Attorney General recommending the acceptance of the Hillet-Kilbourne judgment of twenty thousand dollars.

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the River and Harbor bill An amendment was adopted prohibiting vessels from dumping ashes or other refuse matter in the Providence river

A large number of amendments were offered to the section providing for new surveys, a majority of which were voted down

Mr Belford, of Colorado, offered an amendment providing that all appropriations in this bill shall be paid in standard silver coin of the United States or in silver certificates Under a New York, President and a New York Secretary of the Treasury he said the coin of the country was locked up in the Treasury but both these officers he thanked God, would depart from office on March 4th next The Republican party had nominated a man who had been willing to recognize the great silver product of Colorado and if the Democratic party has sense enough to nominate as its candidate John G Carlisle, the country would get along very well whether a Democrat or other was elected The amendment was lost, 71 to 77.

On motion of Mr Foulk, of Vermont, the appropriation for Burlington harbor was increased from $5,000 to $25,000 At 12 55 P M the committee arose and reported the bill

Mr Oates, of Alabama, moved to strike out the Memphis Canal clause agreed to yeas 146, nays 102 The bill then passed 155 yeas 103 nays 14

Mr Eaton, of Connecticut then called up for consideration the Senate bill regulating the electoral count with an amendment proposed by the House Committee Mr Eaton said there were three modes proposed for counting the electoral votes The first mode was presented by the Senate bill, the second mode was presented by the House Committee, and one other rule in which he believed to be the right one. He believed that under the Constitution the House of Representatives could hold the sole power to count the electoral votes. If in future a bill was not agreed upon by the two Houses and third should be any such action as there was in 1876 he would call upon the House to exercise its constitutional right and determine all questions relating to the Presidential election He saw one way out of the difficulty and that was by a joint vote.

Mr Pryor, to Alabama delivered a carefully prepared speech in favor of the House bill addressing himself to the historical, legal and constitutional points involved and before he had concluded the House adjourned

The Bowdoin-Colby Game

Our Colby correspondent writes us as follows In relation to the final game of the series between the Bowdoins and the Colbys

Wednesday s Colby Bowdoin game proved the final of this year s schedule in the Inter-Collegiate contest of Maine It took place on the Colby grounds at 4 1 M, with both nines in their finest working trim Though it is often hard to decide wherein one game excels another, this one was in many respects an exhibition of the finest work done in any of our matches The closing of the ninth inning showed very plainly to the great joy of the Colby boys, how completely they had carried the victors into camp It was not without hard work that the home team earned their four scores, while their still harder and more creditable work rewarded the efforts of the Bowdoin batsman and base runners with but a long line of blanks

The Bowdoin team was in all other games where we have been winners, clearly out-played at every point Wright did himself usual credit, carving his hog-leather sphere so as to be located with the greatest difficulty by those who faced him His support behind the bat was admirable.

No praise is sufficient for the execution of the Colby battery. How is surely a second Whitney, for all of the Bowdoin heavy batters were retired again and again without a list of any kind, while but three hits in all were taken off his pitching for the game. Matthews is a marvel, who catches the swiftest pitching the State ever saw without an error, a record which he has repeatedly made

So the fourth consecutive season has closed, in which the championship has clearly fallen to Colby

The games of the present season have resulted in the following scores,

First, at Brunswick—Colby, 3; Bowdoin, 6

Second, at Brunswick—Colby, 3; Bowdoin, 6

Third, at Waterville—Colby, 4; Bowdoin, 1

Fourth, at Waterville—Colby, 4; Bowdoin, 0

Following are the names and positions of the championship nine

Hoe, captain and pitcher
Mathews, catcher.
Emerson, first base.
Burt, second base
Goodwin, third base.
Larrabee, short stop.
N. L. Pulsifer, centre field.
T. B. Paterson, right field.

SERENADE TO CONGRESSMAN BOUTELLE.

A Large and Enthusiastic Republican Gathering.

Speeches by Mayor Humphrey and Mr. Boutelle.

It being understood that Representative Boutelle would return to Washington this morning, some of the leading Republicans arranged yesterday to give him a serenade last evening to congratulate him upon the glorious result of the Chicago Convention and to assure him of the gratification they felt at the part he had taken in the contest No public notice of the serenade was given, but word was sent around that they would proceed to Mr Boutelle s residence on Hromway at nine o clock last evening, accompanied by the Bangor Band, and Mr Boutelle was notified of their intended coming

Accordingly at that hour a large crowd marched to the music of the band to Mr Boutelle s house, completely filling the broad street and sidewalks in front of and adjacent to the house The committee had arranged two bonfires which lit up the scene with great brilliancy and made a picture beautiful to look upon Over Mr Boutelle s front door was a transparency, bearing the word "Victory" and Chinese lanterns decorated from the windows while the house as well as those of his neighbors was brilliantly lighted up

Arriving at the house, three cheers were called for and given with a will for Hon Charles A Boutelle who after music by the band, appeared at his front door He was met by Col A B Fenham, the efficient chairman of the committee of arrangements, who introduced His Honor, Mayor Humphrey, to extend the congratulations of the Republicans of Bangor on the splendid result of the Chicago Convention and to return their thanks for the part he had done in the work

SPEECH OF MAYOR HUMPHREY

Mr Boutelle Your fellow citizens in large numbers have called tonight to pay their respects to you, and congratulate you on the Republican nomination Sir You did a good work a week last week, in the National Republican Convention There has been no such scene since the surrender of Lee as there was when the news came over the telegraph wires to the assembled and with thousands announcing that the convention had nominated James G Blaine of the State of Maine

I felt that we have voted for one whom we honored and respected I am whom the world honors, but in 1884 we have voted for a man who given and made beside the name of famous statesmanship commanding reputation and respect of the world (Applause) He is in Europe respected by all Always standing in the full regard of all civilized nations always boldly avowing his opinions he has passed a stormy ordeal through the ordeal of calumny the shafts that have flung at him have been broken off by the confidence of a great people and to-day the best loved citizen of the United States

He is the man who heads our ticket But we are not running this campaign on Blaine alone, although he has strength and popularity enough for half a dozen candidates (Cheers.) We are associated with him a great patriot and soldier who won his golden spurs on a hundred battle fields of the Republic (Cheers) Our candidate for Vice President is a seasoned statesman and a soldier and as a statesman and in both spheres of public usefulness he has held his character above reproach and unblemished as to shows No soldier has a more brilliant military record, one of all the host stands no peer to the heroes of the veterans of the Union army He has been with them and of them in the war and since, and to-day is recognized all over the land as the most distinguished champion of their interests Just put your ear to the ground between this and November and you will hear it tremble under the tread of the enthusiastic legions of the old soldiers, who will follow the banner of John A Logan They are going to put an S before his name and make it the Slogan of Republican victory

Friends we are to begin the great battle here in the State of Maine Here is the headquarters of the Republican Commander-in-chief and the voters of Maine are made the Guard of Honor in September we are to move directly on the enemy s wake and the assault must be decisive and overwhelming Remember that history repeats itself When the Republican party was born to vindicate the great principles of liberty and justice Illinois and Maine furnished the standard bearers LINCOLN AND HAMLIN—and under their lead our great organization won its first and famous victory To-day we stand on ground made sacred by the devotion and sacrifice of the past with the greatest interests of humanity still demanding our efforts and with the shade of the immortal Lincoln and Garfield beckoning us forward in the path of duty Let us here and now resolve to emulate the firmness and enthusiasm of 1860 and move solidly and resistibly forward to another glorious political triumph, and raise the banner borne this time by Maine and Illinois and inscribed with the names of their illustrious sons—JAMES G BLAINE and JOHN A LOGAN (Long-continued cheering)

At the conclusion of Mr Boutelle s remarks which were repeatedly, as well as Mr Humphrey s, interrupted with loud applause and cheers especially at the mention of the names of Blaine and Logan, he invited the band into the house, and as many more as the house would contain

A very large number accepted the invitation and passed through the hall, shaking Mr Boutelle by the hand, and coffee and cake was furnished to them

The Apollo Quartette were also present, and sang, in the hall, several campaign songs in their usually excellent style, affording much pleasure to those present

Mr Boutelle also received a large number of personal friends, both ladies and gentlemen, who came to extend their congratulations.

After all who desired had partaken of refreshments, and the band had played several more selections, the serenaders departed, all greatly pleased with the affair, and saying that it was one of the pleasantest occasions in its way that had ever occurred here. Mr. Boutelle, on his part, was highly pleased and deeply grateful for this kind manifestation of the regard of his fellow citizens.

Correction.

The resolution of Penobscot Conference yesterday, as reported, was not reported correctly as passed by that body. It was as follows

"In view of the present needs of Maine the Penobscot Conference of Congregational churches believe that the policy of constitutional amendment would promote the cause of temperance in this State, therefore

Resolved, That this conference express their hearty commendation of the proposed amendment and urge all our pastors and members to employ all proper means which may lead the citizens of this State to adopt this amendment

The Palo Alto Ranch.

EX-GOVERNOR STANFORD'S FANCIFUL DOMAIN—SITE OF THE PROPOSED INDUSTRIAL UNIVERSITY—AN ESTATE OF SIX THOUSAND ACRES.

[Special to Occidental Circ. of the Tribune.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—The interview with ex-Governor Stanford in regard to the founding of an industrial university at Palo Alto, in memory of his son, which appeared in yesterday's Tribune, and which was specially telegraphed out here by the Chronicle, created great interest, only a mere rumor of the Governor's plan had reached this city, so that the details of his proposed generosity were in the nature of news which interested a large part of the public. I visit had been planned by me to the Palo Alto ranch on this account apparent, and as this place is to be the site of the future university, where the boys and girls of California may be trained in useful handiwork, the facts about the place will perhaps be without interest.

A good many years ago the Governor got this ranch, which is situated on rolling ground about a mile from the village of Menlo Park, on the line of the Southern Pacific railroad, thirty-two miles from this city. It derived its name from a large pine tree which stands at the side of the gateway, and which is clearly visible at a distance of many miles. A broad, well-shaded avenue which opens up to the comfortable house, is bordered on the right, as one enters, by a pretty creek, which in winter is swelled by rains to a stream of fair proportions; on the other side is the apple orchard, dotted with ornamental trees. There is an air of peace and repose, as if Nature and not man had planted these grounds, which is not common in such suburban homes. No attempt has been made to indulge in the mania, or landscape gardening, in a word everything is the reverse of artificial.

A HANDSOME DWELLING SITE.

The house is a low, two-story cottage, simple porch covered with climbing roses. It is surrounded by beautifully ringed grass plots; in the rear are numerous outbuildings for servants, a very extensive conservatory and forcing-house, a simple kitchen-garden, a nursery of rare fruit and ornamental shrubs. Over to the right of the house, beyond a peach orchard, is the site which the Governor had selected before his departure for Europe for his life, new house. The excavation for the foundation and cellar was only, and the earth at the front and sides had been piled up and packed, so as to form the nucleus of a fort, and the ground was prepared for thorough drainage. Then it was left, until Nature soon covered it with the growth of grass, so that when we came up on the front compact yet rounded like the grass-grown deserted fortress of the Spaniards erected in early days at various points along the coast. This will probably be the site of the new university, and certainly no more picturesque one could be found in this charming valley. Three noble avenues will be laid out in front of this site, leading to the main highway, about a mile of a mile away. Following the one on the left, the eye is led straight to Mount Diablo, thirty miles east of San Francisco. The Coast range, which stands at the back, is not visible, the peak in the range, the main avenue is laid out on a line with Tamalpais, a rugged summit of irregular ridge of mountains in Marin county across the bay from this city, while the third avenue leads in the direction of the hot springs in the Santa Cruz mountains, at which the Governor is interested. The horizon is marked by the faint blue line of the distant coast range, while, rising abruptly around, one may see the softly rolling foothills, dotted with houses, and another one of the coast range forming behind, their mountains clearly defined against the cloudless sky.

PLAY AND USE COMBINED.

The land slopes gently away to the marsh, which runs parallel with the railroad, being the owners have been planted hundreds of ornamental plants. Here it was the owner's intention to establish an arboretum or, as it is unknown in this country, a design like to demonstrate how many more varieties of American and foreign shrubs and trees could be made to flourish in this climate. Under these gentlemen's direction, in so many of his undertakings, he had the good of the public in view, using his vast wealth to conduct experiments on a scale so costly that only a private fortune could have attempted it. But, alas! the arboretum, which is by no means of many rare plants and trees, has been abandoned, and in its stead the idea of a college, which, if carried out in the spirit outlined by the founder, will be unrivalled in this country in its capacity for practical good. Certainly no location could be better adapted than this for the experiment of an industrial school. With no addition to the question the Palo Alto ranch would afford ample means of instruction in a half-dozen branches of science, and with the wealth behind liberal views of the trustees, there seems scarcely a limit to the facilities for practical education which might be made to attach. The climate is so kindly that one may work in the open throughout the year, and frosts, snowstorms, and cyclones are unknown in this place, the heat of summer is tempered by breezes from the ocean, and when all is finished and fair, fever and ague and other ills which curse so many settlings, would not this favored spot, in fact, it would be difficult to find the whole country to find a more fitting place for an industrial school, or one in which to carry on the open air work may be performed year round with so little fatigue.

AT THE PALO ALTO STABLES.

A special effort has been made in this country in the way of agriculture or stock raising, but there is a fine old style of horse racing, which probably gives the western sport so good an idea of the classic amusements of grandeur as places could be afforded anywhere in the State. A complete forty acres, the oval being laid in rows much nearer together than the present one contains the body of the track frequently a foot in diameter, yet the growth is cut down so that the eye sees not much above a man's waist. This year's crop brought in $6,200, or a little over $150 revenue to the acre. Near this is a field of fifty acres, level as a floor, of rich dark loam, which was rented a year ago last fall to young Hinds, one of the richest farmers in the state, and in three years will be in good bearing. Many changes besides this have been made on the ranch during the Governor's ownership. When he went away he placed a ranch in the hands of Major Rathbone, an ex-Army officer, who has a fine home at Menlo Park, and who is passionately fond of horses; Governor Stanford's fancy for trotting and running stock grading, will thus establish stables on a portion of his estate about a mile and a half out of his house. There many famous sires have been bred, and there in the shape of a pretty little ring, the ex-Governor's favorite sit and watch his favorite animals as they are speeded about the track. There, also, were conducted the famous experiments on the horse in motion, taking by means of instantaneous photography. The little house, with the twenty-four places for cameras, stands by the side of the large track, and there, in the company of about twenty feet, two dozen distinct views of the horse were taken as he went by with the speed of the wind—a speed which only electricity could keep place with and register.

For the hobby of a millionaire grew beyond all bounds, and running over thousands of the breeding stables, utilizing his West Point training, has established a system of military discipline which has lifted the establishment almost to the dignity of a public institution. Rarely will one find in a National or State establishment such admirable economy of space and labor, such neatness and system. Over one hundred and fifty men are employed, about half white and half Chinese, and the stables, barns, paddocks, and training rings, seen from a little distance, bear a striking resemblance to a military post.

RESULTS OF THE TRAINING SYSTEM.

So successful has been the system followed here that the Governor is credited now with owning the fastest one, two or three year olds in the country—all bred in Palo Alto stables. Certainly if care in breeding and training animals can accomplish good results in increasing the speed of thoroughbreds, there ought to be no such word as failure here. Everything is watched with the minutest attention. The young colts are all as gentle as calves, which have been the pets of the farmer's family; they are broken to harness and then exercised every day on the track, in rainy weather a covered "run around" being provided in order that there may be no lack of the regular and systematic training which is so essential an element in the future success of the animal. And the result is a collection of graceful animals, with fine intelligent faces, clean-cut heads and limbs.

So famous has the stable become that colts from it are in great demand and fetch high prices. Still, of course, the owner does not realize more than one-half of the annual expenditure; yet in time, if carried out under the present plan, it will be sure to yield a handsome revenue as well as to establish the reputation of the State as one of the best in the world for breeding of fine racing stock.

ADDITIONS TO THE ESTATE, ETC.

Under instructions from the Governor Major Rathbone has also added largely to the extent of the Palo Alto ranch, during the owner's absence. Before, the place consisted of 2,000 acres. During the last two years 3,000 acres have been gained by purchase, so that the whole range of foothills which can be seen at the rear of the place are included in this domain. One tract of 1,400 acres was bought from an eccentric Frenchman named Coutts, who had been a defaulter to a large amount in France and escaped to this country years ago, bought this ranch and settled down upon it with his family. His three daughters were fine cattle, frogs, and rare old books. His house was a low, rambling cottage, but near it he built a fine brick library, in which were stored his costly books, first folios and black letter MSS. On the gentle hill which overlooked his house he had established an enormous frog pond, covering a quarter of an acre, and supplied it with the finest spring water brought from the neighboring hills, although he contented himself with ordinary well water. He spent thousands of dollars boring into the hills near by in search of water, and he built a large reservoir on a high hill as a means of filling it. He raised the cattle, and his barns were very well built and arranged. These barns have been converted into hog stalls, and here are all the Governor's running horses. The old Frenchman, finding that his offence had been condoned by the statute of limitations, packed up his choice books and returned to France.

There are only a few of the features which make Palo Alto as well worth a visit by any tourist. Of course, in the years to come, with the University well established, it will be a place of pilgrimage to all who hope to see in which day the practical working of such a scheme of practical education.

—OF—
BLAINE AND LOGAN,
The Republican Nominees for President and Vice-President.
to be voted for at the coming National Election.
The size of this picture is 22×28 inches, lithographed in elegant style, on solid plate paper, and contains small portraits of our party leaders, Presidents, LINCOLN and GARFIELD, also a portrait of WASHINGTON, with appropriate emblems representing PEACE, PLENTY and PROSPERITY.
No expense has been spared in making this picture an artistic piece of work, and at the low price we quote, we prefer a large sale during the next five months. It will be eagerly sought for by campaign clubs and other political organizations.
We also intend to publish a similar picture of the DEMOCRATIC nominee in July, and solicit your orders now at the same scale of prices.
This elegant style of lithograph portraits have never before been sold at retail for less than $1.00 each, but in order to give these pictures an IMMENSE SALE during the campaign, we have decided to make the price down to 40 Cents Each.

'Twas a Frigid Day.
For it when we hung our banner on the outer walls with 10 per cent. discount from regular prices on it, for it slipped in the mud the pet dropped we had in slow old buying Kendall's Boots and converting it into a mountain clothing wholesale. We shall still keep the rooms we have occupied for the past year, however, and with the mailings its we shall, create from the finest fine, forgiveness, sure, don't letting one beat you out of the bargains count.
